

I am writing to support New Jersey's strict "do not call" list law. It has been incredibly successful, and for the first time in a long time, I can now answer my phone without worrying about marketing calls, the number of which had been overwhelming. The federal law alone does not do the job, as my friends in other states are having a difficult time getting marketers to stop calling them.

Rather than weakening the law in NJ, and making it look as if the Federal government is in the pocket of marketers and their lobbyists, I hope that you will not make some sort of pre-emption argument in support of shutting down NJ's stricter laws.

Thank you!
